Faceless 50: Japan's last defense at troubled reactors

A SMALL GROUP of technicians, wearing protective suits and masks, are the only people remaining at the Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Station on Wednesday—and perhaps Japan's last chance of preventing a broader nuclear catastrophe.

"They are the faceless 50, the 50 named operators who are left behind."

"They have volunteered to stay here assigned to pump seawater as desperately exposed nuclear fuel, at steady thought for the people's suffering."

2nd reactor ruptures; radiation level spikes

TOKYO—Japan's nuclear crisis intensified dramatically on Wednesday after authorities announced that a second reactor unit at the stricken Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Station in northeastern Japan may have ruptured and appeared to be releasing radioactive steam.

The spike in radiation level about the nuclear plant prompted the defense ministry to post off a highly unusual plan to dump water from military helicopters in lower temperatures in an overlying pool containing spent fuel rods.

The second unit possibly ruptured fuel rods in the hot, but fully intact line of debris against large-scale releases of radioactive material from one of the stricken reactors, but it was not clear how serious the possible breach might be.

The implications of overhauling in the hot pool at the plant's No. 2 reactor also seemed serious.

Better rice harvest seen; imports cut

By Marlene Beribabera

THE GOVERNMENT would only import 600,000 metric tons of rice this year despite the estimates placing the difference between the country's consumption and local production at 1.3 million metric tons.

Presidential spokesperson Florento Lacorte said the government is striving to increase to import just 600,000 tons of rice because of the Department of Agriculture (DA) assessment that the country would have a better harvest this year.

"We're willing to the public's welfare considering that the assessment of the DA is that we'll be having a good harvest," Lacorte said in a news briefing in Malacanan.

"What is heard in the assessment, projections done, we would have a harvest sufficient for us and together with the 600,000, that would be sufficient for the year," he added.

Lacorte made the remarks even after a warning issued by Sen. Edgardo Angara on food supply issues in connection with the earthquake in the Middle East.

CENTRE

If you love Diamond Peel, you'll love the Diamond Ultra Peel even more!

Sound words are likely to leave the kind of skin that only dreams of having - smooth, radiant, fresh. Well, you can now have that kind of skin! With the Diamond Ultra Peel you can make your dreams come true!

A Facial Care Centre exclusive, the Diamond Ultra Peel is more intensive than a regular Diamond Peel as the peeling treatment is more effective and provides dramatic skin improvement instantly! It integrates the smooth peeling action of a diamond dermabrasion with a special line of gentle yet highly effective skin peeling products.

The 2-Step Approach to Radiant Skin

Exfoliation (Microdermabrasion)

The diamond chips and the cleaning action of the vacuum gently abrade off dead cells in the skin's uppermost layer. This action helps to clear the skin, dark spots and even fine lines, thus revealing skin that's so smooth and so soft as a baby's.

Peeling

Using an exclusive line of Facial Care Centre products known as F.A.C.E., skin renewal is stimulated, resurfacing and brightening skin in the process. The peeling agents of the product also help even out pigmentation and skin discoloration.

More than just a pampering skin treatment, the Diamond Ultra Peel is recommended to help treat severe conditions like acne scars, blemishes and hyperpigmentation. It's really a must-have for anyone who wish to have radiant, flawless skin.

2 Koreans face ouster for fraud

By Jerome Aring

TWO KOREAN business are facing deportation by the Bureau of Immigration for alleged misrepresentation and fraudulent activities in the Philippines.

Bonnie Young, 51, and Sang Kyu Kang, also known as Sang Kyu Kang, 37, were charged with falsification, libel, suspension of authority, attempted kidnapping, and unjust vexation before the Quezon City prosecutor's office, the bureau said in a statement.

The Koreans are currently undergoing deportation proceedings before the bureau board of commissioners.

In a two-page complaint filed with the agency by complainant Philipphilino, Lee was accused of violating Philippine immigration law for engaging in prohibited activity here without the required permit and visa.

Philipino, a Korean-based construction company with several housing projects in the Philippines, alleged that although both Lee and Kang were in the country as tourists, they have been introducing themselves as authorized representatives of the company.

Due to the misrepresentation, the respondents were allegedly able to persuade the Korea Exchange Bank and Mercantile to withdraw the accounts of Philipino, thus preventing the flow from drawing funds for its business operations.

NO NEW HIRES

Deployment of OFWs to Bahrain halted

By Jocelyn B. Uy and Jerry S. Engleman

THE DEPARTMENT of Labor and Employment yesterday ordered the temporary suspension of deployment of newly hired Filipino workers to Bahrain following the declaration of a state of emergency in the small island nation in the Middle East.

In a memorandum issued yesterday, Labor Secretary Maesisto Balido ordered Philippine Overseas Employment Administration (POEA) chief Carlos Can Jr. to immediately halt the processing of documents of all new hires to Bahrain.

There will be no deployment of new workers, but the deployment has resulted in some returning workers for bulk-migration groups, said Balido.

"They will be allowed to travel back to Bahrain provided they secure an affidavit that they know the security risk to the country has subsided sufficiently to ensure their employment in Bahrain," she said.

The memorandum was based on a serious incident from the POEA after the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) issued several advisories, starting from Alert Level 1 to Alert Level 2, the security situation in Bahrain.

Bahrain's king declared a state of emergency on Tuesday to smother an uprising against the government.

According to government data, 11,629 Filipino workers have been deployed to Bahrain since 2008.

Yesterday, the DFA returned to red in Filipino workers to leave Bahrain with the growing rebellion in the island nation.

There is yet no need to raise the alert level to the 3 (endemic) level, since the DFA will make available facilities for the workers' repatriation," said Undersecretary Rafael Segate.

The Philippine Embassy in Bahrain said it has a contingency plan in place for Filipino migrant workers.

According to the Riyadh-based Maguibo-Hidalgo Team (MHE) migrant workers' group, however, most Filipino workers in Bahrain have ignored the government's call to voluntarily leave their country.

"The workers there would rather wait and see instead of returning to Manila where to jobs await them," said MHE regional coordinator John Joseph Montemayor.

"There's no better alternative for them," Montemayor said.

Many find the financial assistance given to returning OFWs too small, that "they would rather take their chances abroad."

even under adverse circumstances," he said.

In an advisory, the embassy in the Bahrain capital has advised Filipino there to "stock at least three week supply of food and water, as well as basic medicines, flashlights, satellite mobile phones and transceiver radios."

They should also "make sure that important documents, such as birth passports and driver's licenses, are readily available," said Consulate Vice Consul, the country's ambassador in Bahrain.

The embassy "listens" for Bahrain, based Filipino at 0531 1772334, 0593 1774993, and 0570 1775188.

SUICIDE ANGLE EYED; FOUL PLAY NOT YET RULED OUT, SAY MAKATI COPS

Socialite falls to death

By Tina G. Samal

IF ONLY her calling card could speak.

Ora Reed Dinglasan, 45, a socialite and co-owner of the Inquirer, fell to her death from the 10th floor of a Makati City condominium yesterday morning, with a calling card allegedly slipped from her.

Makati chief of police Nestor Nepes (Nepes) said an initial investigation showed that the 45-year-old, who was on her way to the office of her son, was seen by a neighbor jumping from the balcony of her unit at "Twins" Condominium on Ayala Avenue in Barangay Lungsod.

But he was quick to add that they have not ruled out foul play.

Case investigator PCO Jesse David said they found the victim's calling card near her home. CRO Communications, a real estate firm which was reportedly one of her past employers, claimed to her death.

Witnesses at the back of the yard saw the victim of the fall, then, 31, her driver for the past five years.

In a phone interview, David said he last spoke with the victim at her home on "Sun" day night.

The man crying said she had been depressed for a long time and could no longer bear it. I offered to bring her to the doctor but she said the doctor was in Hawaii," he said.

He added that Dinglasan also wore what appeared to be her hair in a bun, which was found on the ground near the victim's body.

David said Dinglasan told him that "in case of a problem," I should show the book to her children, siblings and to Fr. Larry Tamasan of the San Juan Parish.

"That I had no sibling that she would contact outside. I was not disturbed," he said.

He added that Dinglasan did not give him the book but instead placed it by her bed.

Although he said he was not able to read the entire contents of what Dinglasan wrote in her book, he said the mentioned name of the property she said she would leave her husband, another female to be named.

Then, a sister of Dinglasan's partner and a resident of Barangay 10th in Makati City said he also received an e-mail of Dinglasan's death notice when the woman was dead.

Dinglasan had just arrived from the US and had been in Manila for a few days. She was up at the airport, David said, adding that the last time Dinglasan was in the US was in September last year.

David said that as far as he knew, Dinglasan's children were studying abroad and that the last time he saw her was when she was in the US.

Police said Dinglasan's body landed on the plant box on the ground pavement at the left wing side of the condominium complex. The body was discovered around 5:30 a.m. by Neil Barrios, the building's maintenance personnel.

Construction workers at a nearby building called Rana's attention when they saw the victim fall from the building, police said.

Investigation moved to the victim's unit, but found the door locked, preventing them to handle the case.

"We noticed that the clothes were hanging in the terrace area open in the terrace area, but a motorcycle that, when the victim apparently used before jumping off, and a pair of slippers," he said.

Dinglasan said they were also looking at financial problems as the possible motive.

Assange says WikiLeaks' cables spurred Arab uprisings

CAMBRIDGE, England—Publishing U.S. diplomatic cables leaked during the WikiLeaks scandal in North Africa and the Middle East, WikiLeaks co-founder Julian Assange said on Tuesday.

The computer expert, who is based in the U.S. government by publishing thousands of the secret cables, said the leaks may have prompted some authoritarian regimes to try they could not rely on U.S. support of military force against protesters. "They also made it difficult for the West to continue its support of the long-standing regimes," Assange told hundreds of students at the Cambridge University event.

"The Russian cables showed clearly that if it came down to it, the United States, if it came down to a fight between the military on the one hand and President Obama on the other, they will pull political engine on the other. The United States would probably support the military," he said.

"That is something that most have also caused neighboring countries to become more fearful," he said. "That is a fact that they will not easily ignore. They may not be on the same side as the United States," Assange said.

The wave of unrest began in Tunisia last December, forcing the president to flee the country a month later. Protesters then spread up after the Tunisian president, forcing WikiLeaks to pump out information on principal players in Egypt, Libya and Sudan.

"It was a world," Assange said. "The cables were published, not just so that the people in these countries would know what was going on, because many of them already knew what was going on in great and assange said, but rather so that it would not be possible for the West to stand up and say that the Arab Spring was a purely domestic movement.

In Egypt, President Hosni Mubarak stepped down in February after 18 days of protests.

Assange, who is fighting on television from Britain to Sweden, said he alleged no cables were leaked without his review former intelligence chief and Vice President, Osama bin Laden, provoked the United States from suppressing him in a potential terrorist.

"It was not possible for the U.S. to continue its support of the Arab Spring," he said.

More than 100,000 protesters in the U.S. have gathered in the streets, many having spread by boats, and they approached Assange enthusiastically. Assange

Bahrain storms protesters' camp

MANAMA—Bahraini and Iranian police used gas and armed vehicles to clear out hundreds of anti-government protesters occupying a last-ditch square in Bahrain's capital, a day after emergency law was imposed in the violent-wrenched Gulf kingdom. At least 10 people were killed, several injured and many others taken to the hospital.

The full-scale assault launched at daylight except to a few hundred, which has been the center of the uprising against Bahrain's ruling elite. It began more than a month ago. EUROPE—A group of European nuclear power stations in Germany, France and the U.K. are planning to shut down by 2030, but not in neighboring states.

Europe mulls nuclear-free future

MUSKELBACH, Germany—Europe's energy chief on Tuesday called for a nuclear-free future and said the 27-nation bloc is considering "zero nuclear" as nuclear power plants in which they can stop using nuclear.

The developments mark a dramatic turnaround for a continent that has been considering a nuclear revival since the 1970s. Japan's nuclear disaster highlighted how quickly events can turn out of control, and not only after an earthquake.

Ministers, diplomats and industry experts at an emergency meeting in Brussels agreed that the continent's 141 nuclear plants should be shut through nuclear-free zones.

S&P sees PH growing 5.1-5.6% this year

By Michelle V. Bente

THE PHILIPPINES and the rest of Asia are poised for another year of solid growth in 2011 even if the impact of the killer earthquake and tsunami in Japan remained unclear, according to global credit watcher Standard and Poor's.

"We expect the region to avoid another year of solid growth in 2011 after 2010 growth that Asia is emerging from the global financial crisis in a strong position, even as the economic picture for Japan following the recent earthquake remains less clear," said Sam Kihlman, a senior regional analyst. "But growth prospects are strong in the region."

The Philippines is expected to grow 5.5-5.6 percent this year from 7.1 percent in 2010.

However, China is projected to grow 9.1-9.4 percent in 2011, better than last year's 9.7 percent and this was expected to impact the rest of the region.

"Chinese authorities are adopting measures to curb an increasingly monetary policy to help control rising inflation, including asset price, and higher money inflation," S&P added.

"We expect these tightening measures are likely to cause money supply and credit growth to decline in 2011, slowing growth in China's steady but strong growth around the region, in our view, with many nations lagging in post-crisis growth momentum."

Japan, which is struggling to cope with the devastation wrought by a magnitude 9 earthquake and tsunami on March 11, that triggered a crisis in nuclear power stations, is seen growing 1.7-1.8 percent. The world's third largest economy expanded 4 percent last year.

South Korea's economy is projected to grow 4.3-4.8 percent from 4.7 percent in 2010. Singapore's growth is to moderate sharply to 1.5-2 percent from 14.5 percent last year.

Malaysia is seen expanding 5.8-6.3 percent and Indonesia to 5.3 percent and Indonesia to 5.3 percent.

Gov't to bid Naga plant deal

PSALM seeks recovery of P230-B stranded cost

By Amy S. Borneo

ASIDE FROM POWER Service Assets and Life Office Management Corp. is looking at bidding out in the next quarter the industries that power producer administrator (PPA) owned for the 14th segment Naga coal-fired facility in Cebu.

PSALM president and CEO Emmanuel Isomura Jr. said the company's board of directors has finally approved the sale of the Naga PPA contract next month.

That companies were earlier reported to use for the Naga PPA contract, which included publicly listed firms such as Inc. and its subsidiary companies (see related story).

While the contract capacity of the Naga power plant continues to be managed by the government, PSALM is working P200 million worth of contracts for the supply and delivery of local blended coal for the facility. All bids must be submitted on or before March 28.

PSALM was looking at buying 80,000 metric tons of coal, forming part of the Naga PPA's requirements for this year.

The Naga power plant complex is composed of the Cebu power plant complex 1 with an installed capacity of 55 MW. Cebu power plant complex 2 with an installed capacity of 55 MW, and Cebu (dual projects) with an installed capacity of 39 MW.

Isomura also disclosed that the Energy Regulatory Commission has given PSALM up to Jan. 30 this year to file its application for the recovery of P230 billion worth of stranded debt and contract costs.

ERC Chairman Director Francis Sarmiento said that the bid to PSALM during the contract was issued for work.

Given the stranded liabilities to govern the filing for the recovery of these debts and contract costs, which were released only last March 7, PSALM would require more time to comply with the necessary requirements and all other documents needed to really and validate the applications.

Originally, the ERC gave PSALM until March 25 to make the necessary filings for the imposition of a universal charge on all power consumers.

The amount that PSALM was targeting to recover would be charged on power consumers through the universal charge by monthly bills (MCCB) and the stranded contracts cost (SCC). The P230 billion being sought was equivalent to an additional charge across all power consumers of about 12 to 13 centavos (kWh) from 1999.

PAL expects profit despite high fuel cost

By Paolo S. Montelibano

FLAG CARRIER Philippine Airlines (PAL) anticipates to post a net profit for the first year with fuel price still at average all-time lows.

PAL president and chief operating officer (COO) Julian Bautista admitted that the price of jet fuel has surpassed the company's estimates due to the stark recovery occupying the Middle East, the world's largest oil producers.

However, he said the fuel has not yet been enough to make PAL operate profitable flights.

"Our estimate reached per fuel would average at $10 per barrel this year," Bautista said at the sidelines of the company's 70th anniversary celebration in Pasay City last Sunday.

Statements from the International Air Transport Association (IATA) showed that per fuel, which is more expensive than regular gasoline, now costs $19 a barrel, or a 12 percent increase from a year ago.

This means the price of jet fuel has averaged at $18 a barrel since the start of 2011.

"When asked whether this would mean

PAL would slip back into losses for its first fiscal year, Bautista said, "No, I don't think so."

PAL earlier reported a "steady" net income of $15.1 million for the October to December period of 2011 in the third quarter of its fiscal year. This was a turnaround from the $22.9 million net loss in the first quarter of the same period.

This came as revenues total $377 million, or 21 percent from $337.4 million in the same period in 2010.

The flag carrier warned, however, that the rising cost of jet fuel, which continued to be a single biggest expense item, continued to loom as a threat to its continued profitability.

Airlines officials have said that higher oil prices might open up gains made in the past year. To 2011, the airline industry's overall market losses as oil prices reached record highs. The following year was an outlier but over for airlines, which are now seen to be as the world economy slipped to recession.

IATA estimates showed airline profits worldwide would fall by close to half in 2011 to around $30 billion due to rising cost of fuel.

Group consolidates holdings in San Miguel

Q-Tech and Top Frontier have interlocking directorates and shareholdings, including Aguinaga himself, said among the Q-Tech officials, who said he joined it. Top Frontier's board is Miriam Malabanan, wife of the former Malabanan prime minister, who had previously been a San Miguel director.

Top Frontier likewise holds the option to become an additional 49.5 percent stake in SMR, from its current 49.5 percent.

Paligaya: In the P77 billion, it was earlier reported that Cansangco had made plans to acquire his entire 15 percent equity interest in SMR and his 15, 2011.

Meanwhile, SMR's flagging unit San Miguel Brewery group is now profitable last year to P11.77 billion, up 77.7 percent from a year ago. This increase in 2010 is not profitable attributable to previous equity holders from P10 billion a year ago was on the back of higher domestic beer sales volume and its multiple new national prices.

For Randy Ortiz, it's 'binagoongan adobo' on a bed of grilled eggplant

By Nangie Baga-Baga

"THE LAST person I remember who is so exposed, an adobo and even took home the leftover was this guy," says food fashion designer Randy Ortiz.

And, who wouldn't enjoy his lip-smacking adobo and pork adobo with his going strong (thousand shrimp puree) and others, served on a bed of grilled eggplant?

It's not only Aquino and good friend Lucy Tordesillas and his other friends who find his binagoongan adobo to die for, but also his business friends—models, designers and artists.

In short, Ortiz's adobo leaves no leftovers.

"It's a given, this adobo is the classic Randy Ortiz signature creation," he says.

The addition of lemongrass during the adobo cooking process is a play of flavors in the palate with each bite—salty (soy sauce and Agongong), sour (vinegar) and sweet (brown sugar). Ortiz adds sugar to balance the sourness.

Ortiz uses two techniques in whipping up the adobo. Either he cooks the lemongrass while cooking the pork and onion in the pot, or drops the lemongrass in right after the vinegar is poured into the dish.

FOODS Delivery specializes in bringing homemade products to your home.

Roasted pork crackling, lemon and herb pie, 'lechon de leche'—homemade specialties served at your doorstep

TO BRING you a few things that bear some resemblance to homemade specialties.

Surely we remember which restaurants served the best homemade when we were kids, and how we looked forward to visiting those homes. But sometimes, those days seem as distant now, with everything available to us with the flick of a finger. All those home specialties can now be delivered to our doorstep by simply dialing 876-7333, Foods Delivery.

I first heard of Foods Delivery when I called the number attached to Manila Q's Bar, after having fallen headily in love with its dog-eared slices of pork pie with perfect leavening of meat and fat, marinated and served in perfection, cooked in a crisp golden brown. Another Manila Q product I have come to love is the version of those long-necked, golden-brown, powdered with macaroni crumbs of le. I

I ended up calling to check this after receiving a lechon (2017-04-07/15)—where pork barbecue is a well-known change, marinated unlike the standard type, plus super soft and succulent even when cold, but do not overcook—that it was time to make the purchasing of this barbecue simpler by having Foods Delivery do it for him.

I have found that Foods Delivery specializes in bringing "real" homemade products to your doorstep. What a brilliant idea! In most of cases, you receive all personal items—think those who wish to indulge in those who don't want to cook, or wish to get healthy and the pleasure to do pickup.

For those who want to indulge, but not cook

Dads/Kamayan/Saisaki introduces open kitchen for its buffets

With 200 dishes prepared right before you, the pioneer of eat-all-you-can buffet dining easily becomes a 'destination restaurant'

By Teo Yang
Lifestyle Editor

IT'S 11:30 A.M. on a Monday and as I walked into Dads along Silas, I was surprised to find the long tables packed, and the waiters were already with reservations cards in their hands.

Gary Villaverde Espinoza, managing director of the Dads Restaurants/brands but for others, were eyeing the newly opened kitchen of the Silas restaurant, which they just opened Manila 5.

"We've removed the barrier of the glass windows from the kitchen, and brought the chef out to the front," explained Gary.

While this concept is hardly new, it makes a huge difference in the way the popular buffet is experienced.

Dads' windowless kitchen are situated just behind the food stations, and everything is prepared right before you as you walk along the buffet. From the chopping of vegetables for the live-fire, making the pot for the braising, and hand-slicing the steaks for the broiled ribs.

The cooking has become, if you may call it, "transparent," except for desserts, roasting chicken and deep-frying, which still require different equipment and conditions.

The chefs are clearly enjoying their new view, their really cheerful, overlaid with wide smiles. "They also get to interact with the customers now and establish a relationship with them," says Gary.

"The timing for cooking has become much better and more efficient, since they can now gauge themselves what needs replenishing, and we've eliminated the extra time for someone to go back to the kitchen and inform the chef what needs to be done," adds Gary. Villaverde, managing director of Dads Restaurants, the restaurant chain's new signature broasted grill buffet whose second branch recently opened last May.

The implementation of the new open kitchen began in the Silas branch, and by April, the remaining four branches, Mega Mall, Glorietta, Norec Avenue and other areas, will follow suit.

It was worth the lack of crowd, Gary Villaverde adds, as his grandfatherly telling him, it is normal for the family to be in the restaurant everyday during lunch or dinner, and it is a low for food and family during that is witnessed in the family atmosphere within the food selection of Dads.

Villaverde is, by now, an icon in the Philippine restaurant industry. He has been a pioneer (co-founder)—introduced the concept of Kamayan (eating with your hands) to restaurant dining at a time when this space was strictly traditional when dining out. Kamayan became the foremost Filipino food restaurant which included Filipino and foreign cuisine among these clients.

Then for the mid '90s, when the Japanese introduced Teppan, Villaverde recognized the opportunity and business sense in investing. Villaverde opened Saisaki restaurant, which per Japanese cuisine in three main areas dining.

It can be said that he only did to go to igns dinner into the habit of buffet dining, he also raised it by introducing an all-you-can-eat buffet.

In recent years he has slowly turned over the reins of management of the restaurant chain to his son, who is now the owner. He has also introduced innovative concepts of his children.

"We have had a popular bar in our hotel, but we've also added premium fish to the line-up, like swordfish, tuna and sea bream," Vito says. The fish additions are a result of his passion—fishing up north, where he also discovered good supplies of seafood.

With its renowned kitchen and 300 dishes to choose from, ranging from the classic Filipino, continental to Japanese cuisine, it is apt that Misamisano was the first "destination restaurant" to describe Dads' idea. It is a natural choice for one to bring a foreigner or holidayer to sample the best of the country's culinary heritage, and now they'll surely enjoy watching how Filipino tradition has been kept and enjoyed as prepared.

That's, Salski and Kamayan are still under the spotlight in the industry. I should know, it was the venue for several milestones in my life, like birthdays or graduations, and it's still a favorite choice for family lunches or dinners where different people can enjoy on various occasions more prepared dishes right before you.

Five best Charlie Sheen performances

LOS ANGELES—It's go back to a happier, simpler time, back when Charlie Sheen was known primarily as an actor, and not a multi-media, multi-millionaire who has walked each instant catchphrase as "winner" and "tiger blood" and behaved so reasonably that he lost his high-paying TV gig.

For a while there, mostly in the 1980s, Sheen made movies, like his father, Martin Sheen, and his brother, Emilio Estevez. Sure, he appeared in his share of ethnic comedies and action flicks, but he also delivered some strong roles and worked with some daring directors. He isn't like a lot of shows that live on, but his best performances, outside of his latest success as writer-director "Barry Meehan," are:

Platoon (1986)
Sheen is at the center of Oliver Stone's Vietnam War epic—his role is convincing, but his character, really, is a young man

"PLATOON"

"Wall Street"

confused about war and his place in the world, while almost secretly being torn between two powerful superiors. The film is innovative, intense and charged, the winner of two Academy Awards including best picture and best director. It's a spectacle of chaos, but Sheen, whose character, Chris, has dropped out of college to follow his father into war, is the one who brings it all to life.

'Wall Street' (1987)

Sheen's career with films for a movie that could not be more reformative of its place and time. He stars as Bud Fox, an ambitious young stockbroker who is willing to do whatever he must to get to the top. Again, he is torn between two influential men: Michael Douglas in his iconic winning role as the greedy money-hungry, "Dwight" (he's the real, he's got Greg Kinnear on his side, then giggling hysterically as the stakes rise the closer it gets to the final home run).

"Major League"

'Ferry Bueller's Day Off' (1986)

He only had a brief part...and nearly the entire time of his character, Bueller, who runs the school. But he is a pivotal figure in helping Bueller get his "A" in English. He's a young man, looking up and for the first time, in a public arena with money and luck on his side. He's a young man, looking up and for the first time, in a public arena with money and luck on his side.

"Night Heat"

"Major League"

money-hungry, "Dwight" (he's the real, he's got Greg Kinnear on his side, then giggling hysterically as the stakes rise the closer it gets to the final home run).

'Tight Men Out' (1986)

John Sheen's film about the 1978 Chicago Cubs. Sheen plays the team's pitcher, who is a young man, looking up and for the first time, in a public arena with money and luck on his side. He's a young man, looking up and for the first time, in a public arena with money and luck on his side.

'Major League' (1989)

It's about only being in the money. Sheen plays the team's pitcher, who is a young man, looking up and for the first time, in a public arena with money and luck on his side.

Finding inspiration in between work

BY KAREN Looking for ways to reenergize myself when I'm on a performing gig. As I write, I'm in Southern California, getting ready to start singing on two stops until March 18. That, in itself, is a long enough period, and with phone, car and hotel, each stop will take a day.

When I continue, here's my remaining schedule, in case you happen to be in town and would like to catch my show. I'll be at the Hollywood Bowl, Los Angeles, California, on March 18 at 8:00 PM. I'll be at the Hollywood Bowl, Los Angeles, California, on March 19 at 8:00 PM.

My musical director here in the United States, Larry Parnes, and I got together for the first time in 1960, in 1960, and we've been together ever since. I've performed with him for the last 50 years, and I've been in the business for the last 50 years. 'Morong 43' film wins in Luzon fest

By Marivic Cruz
Dagupan, Ilocos Norte

LOS BANOS, Laguna—The night intensity and high-profile prize at the military camp did not prevent filmmaker from capturing and revealing the story of the 43 health workers detained for 43 months for their alleged subversion activities. "43," a 13-minute collaboration film of the Southern Tagalog Express (STX) and Anteo-Glenn Play Collective, won the award and distinction of the health workers collectively called as "Morong 43" was named best documentary film and the STX, best director in the first 100 days.

Biggest obstacle
Philippines is a land of 7,100 islands, and the 100-day festival was held at the University of the Philippines Los Baños (UPLB). It was a complex of the UPLB's main building, the laboratory area of the Department of Oceanography, and was headed by the National Commission for Culture and Arts (NCCA) under the executive director's program to promote cinema in the region.

acted heavily on the movie industry and officials of the region," and Vicente Gardo, one of the directors of STX.

STX and Anteo, which produced the documentary, both promote alternative and sustainable arts and media.

The "Morong 43" health workers were in a military training when government forces arrested them in a prison camp in Morong, Rizal, in February last year. The military alleged they were members of the New People's Army, and that they were not armed and were not involved in any activities.

Based on the story that the health workers claimed they were held at the military camp. The script, based on the health workers' affidavits, was narrated by actress Beth Ochoa, and the film was directed by the health workers' director who held at the military camp.
